THE CATERPILLAR IN FLORIDA.—The following letter, written by an old and reliable planter gives further particulars of the appearance of the cotton worm in Florida:

We are also in receipt of a note from one Mr. We are also in receipt of a note from one Mr. 8. A.****, (who is to-day at his plantation,) stating the caterpillar have made their appearance on his place. We hear of others where they are just appearing. These are no bogus worms, but the genuine cotton worms, according to the opinion of our oldest planters. Now their appearance this early is numerous. according to the opinion of our oldest planters.
Now, their appearance this early is supprecedented. We thought them very early when they appeared in the latter part of June of last year; and see what they did for us. Should the worm become general, we cannot reckon upon the consequences. Instead of making half a crop, we will make none at all.

We write this thinking you should know the tests and you may rely upon what we say, for facts, and you may rely upon what we say, for n it with our own eyes.

Mr. Geo. F. Habenicht has sent us from James Island "a genuine cotton caterpillar fly," which may be seen at THE NEWS office.

MEMORIAL DAY

There was an exceedingly large gath mig at Magnolia Cemetery yesterday, the annie sary of the death of Stonewall Jackson, observed in this city and throughout the South as Memorial Day. From three P. M. until up to the very moment of the beginning of the ceremonies at half-past five P. M., the trains of the South Carolina and Northeastern Railroads, Graham's line of omnibuses and private vehides emptied their passengers at the Fork of the Road, whilst hundreds trudged to the spot on foot. The avenue leading to the grounds was full of conveyances and pedestrians, the ladies generally carrying their tokens, in wreaths of evergreen and artificial and real flowers.

The moss-covered voluntary contribution boxes, at the junction of the roads inside the enclosure of the cemetery, received offerings from nearly every person who went in. A wellknown colored man drove his carriage up to the gate, pulled off his hat, walked reverently to the boxes and put in his contribution, and as respectfully retired. THE BURIAL GROUND

Had been put in excellent order, and with the neat row of white marble headstones of uniform size, set in a hedge of orange and cacina, presented a beautiful appearance. On the north side of the hedge a platform was erected, on which was a reading desk. The whole dais was covered with moss, crowned with rarlands of laurel. Inside of the burial ground the flowers and wreaths were gathered together, while outside numerous ladies bore crosses, wreaths and mottoed tokens on their

At the appointed hour, the venerable John Bachman, D. D., who arrived some time previous, arose and said that the ceremonies would begin with the reading of a touching ode, from the persof the gifted and lamented Henry Timrod, which he composed for a previous celebration of the association. The first line, 'Sleep sweetly in your humble grave,' will recall to mind the one referred to. Dr. Bachman had read but the first stanza, when he found that he was unable to continue on account of failing sight. By request of the ladies of the association, Mr. F. W. Miller, of THE NEWS, took the doctor's place and concluded he reading of the ode, which was then sung by an impromptu choir, consisting of the board, the scholars of the widow's home, and several gentlemen present. At the conclusion of the singing, Dr. Bachman offered the tollowing appropriate Almighty and Ever-asting God, the wise Creator, the Benevoient Benefactor, and the never-falling friend of all the children of meu, Thou rulest in the Heavens above and on the earth beneath, Thou art acquainted with all the actions of our lives and the motives by which we are actuated. We be seech Thee to direct us in all our thoughts and acts on this solemn occasion. We pray that we may be influenced by the spirit of our blessed Master, who sympathized with the mourner and wept at the grave of a friend. We thank Thee that: Thou hast implanted in our souls the love of country, and hast honored those who fought for their liberties, their firesides and their homes, and that hou hast not denied us the mournful privilege of shedding tears of sorrow over the graves of the teroic deal and of raising monuments to their virtues and worth. Secretar vs. Ol. God, if anoth in our con-tears of sorrow over the graves of the teroic dead and of raising monuments to their virtues and worth. Forgive us, O! God, if aught in our conduct this day, should evidence our discontent with the decrees of Providence, or cause a muraur to escape our lips, at the disappointments and the sorrows which we have experienced. Whilst we mourn over our sad losses, may we use the language of submission, "Not our will, O! God, tut Thrue be done." Whilst we embalm in our memories, and engrave upon our hearts, the virtues of our loved and departed ones who have fallen in the detence of our liberties, may we look up to our Heuvenly Father, and beseech him, through Jesus Christ our Saviour, to enable us to bear these losses with submission, frust and hope.

And almighty Father whilst we this day place garlands upon the monuments of the tallen heroes, may we honor their memories by attending to the wants of the surviving widows and orphans. Enable us to find homes and the means of education for those whom they have left to the cold world's charities.

ies. Teach us, O Lord, lessons of forgiveness toward those who were our enemies. Redress our wrot and help us to extend the hand of charity and m cy. Save us from the oppressor. Restore to us o lost liberties. Grant unto us fruitful seasons a give us again prosperity and peace. And when, in Thine own good time, I hou shalt awake the slumber-ing nations from the dead, may we be permitted to meet our loved ones in a land where ware shalt be at an end, and peace, and love, and harmony shall evermore abound. Through Christ our Lord, Amen.

During the singing of the following ode, written for the occassion by Mrs. E. B. Cheesborough, the graves were strewn with the OHEERBOROUGH.

Not with golden banners flying,
Not with narrial pomp and pride,
Come we here to weave bright chapi
For the loved who bled and died;
There is a softer music sighing,
There is a sadder undercone.

Our own, for us they battled,
They cimbed War's crimson slope,
Then died—lied in the struggle,
Gazing on the star of Hope;
Now through all our sadden'd Southland
tounds the plaint "nevermore;"
Rachel weeping ior her children,
Sleeping on the Eden shore.

Sleeping by the crystal river—
Sleeping in Death's tranquil calm—
Sleeping where the angels softly
Chant sersphic, holy pealin;
Let them sleep; test is their guerdon,
bweetly leep—Life's battle's o'er;
They have won bright palms immortal
On the everla: ting shore.

Memory sings in choral music
The story of their Fame,
As she writes in golden letters
hach hero's honored name;
And Love weaves coronals of beauty,
While Faith looks upward to the skies,
And Hope supes with tender mercy
The tears from Sorrow's eyes.

On a beautiful floral and evergreen cross in the centre of the cemetery, where the monument is to be erested as soon as fands can be obtained, was placed the following ode by Mrs. Adams, of Athens, Ga., wife of the Rev. W. H. Adams, of the Circular Church, Meeting-street:

OUR SOLDIER DEAD.
We stand beneath the drapery of God!
The bannered sky, with arching light, doth shed
Eve's quivering sunight o'er the silent sod,
We bow beneath with God—God and our Dead!

We may not crest the victor's haughty brow
With trophied bays which Triumph's hand hath bound,
The conquered twine but dark wreaths as they bow,
And leave the Cross o'er those whom God hath crowned.

The vaulted sky, involved in azure light Reveals, in fragile beauty, each cloud-wreath, s the no writhing heart knew Wee's wild night, No life slept in its martyrdom beneath,

Oh! soldiers of the South, who dreamless sleep! Ye whose proud brows in majesty ite low; O'er whose high record Glory's star gleams sweep, Whose tones ring thick your firm and deathles

We leave you, silent heroes, with a tear, The pledge of deep and sleepless raemory proud; Of Fame immortal, borne on Love's low bier; Of lives whose stainless honor knew no cloud.

We part, oh soldier dead, with our dark tide, Chanting the mournful ministreley of love, Till the wild thunder-thrill which wakes the dead Conjoins us in eternal bonds above!

Besides decorating the graves in the Memorial ground, about six hundred and fifty in number, the graves of the fallen brave in other parts of the Cemetery were carefully and tastefully decked in the early part of the day. It was estimated that there was no less than three thousand persons present, principally ladies, who were enabled to be present through the kindness of the officials of the South Carolina and Northeastern Railroad, and Graham's omnibus line, all of which furnished ample occommodations, up to a late hour, to visitors and others interested in going to and returning from the grounds. Save the absence of the poet orator, who was expected to be present, the ceremonies were completely carried out, and add another link to the golden chain of memories which binds the past to the present.

The graves of fallen Confederates in private cemeteries in the city were not neglected, and received their share of floral remembrance The scholars of the Widows' Home deserve cost, at the corner of King and Liberty streets, a fine stock of China, crockery, fancy goods, much credit for the beautiful wreaths and garlands they contributed for the occasion.

THE MONUMENTAL FAIR was patronized by a full and fashionable audience last evening. Quite an improvement had been made in moving the musicians inside the hall to the rear of the fancy table on the stage, whence they are heard to better advantage. There will be a matinee for the benefit of the Protestant and Catholic orphans this afternoon, when they will attend in bodies. But a few nights more remain for those to witness this beautiful fair who have not done so. The firemen's prizes are still exciting great emulation amongst the spirited companies. The great question is 'Who's ahead?"

THE CHARLESTON PHOSPHATES.—The discover ry by Professor Holmes and Dr. Praft of a bed of native bone phosphate at Ashley Ferry, caused no little excitement throughout the land. Since then, every shipment of the rock has increased the interest evinced, and just now, after the exportation of several thou and tons, all the Northern States of this confederacy, England and Europe generally, are exercised to a great degree on the subject. It is that Professor Holmes, of our city, by invitation of the National Academy of Sciences, has lately delivered before that academy, in Washington, an interesting account of this remarkable "phosphate bed," its geological position, and its wonderful palmontological and chemical characteristics. The lecture "excited considerable talk." The pioneer in the development of this enterprise is, we believe, the "Charleston Mining and Manufacturing Company." It is composed of the wealthiest, most prominent and practical Philadelphians. They have succeeded in obtaining a new charter at the last session of the South Carolina Logislature, by which they were permitted to increase the capital of the company and to establish its principal office for business either at New York, Philadelphia or Baltimore. At a special meeting of the stockholders, held in Philadelphia on the 28th ult., the capital stock was increased to one million of dollars, and the principal office of business located at Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Arthur H. Locke, the well known and highly esteemed secretary of the company, remains in Charleston for the present in charge of the clerical department. The works on the Ashley are to be prosecuted with vigor, and new diggings will shortly be opened; several steam washers to be immediately erected, and the railroads to be built furnished with T iron. A new channel of trade has thus been suddenly opened to our Charleston morchants; the weekly exports of "phos-rock" has increased; full-rigged ships are at this moment loading with the "stuff." and by the autumn a flert will be in the Ashley. Ashley Ferry and Marysville are destined to become inland towns of South Carolina.
